Collection by visiting the Aage Vestergaard Larsen A/S' website.

Aage Vestergaard Larsen A/S has continuous access to statistical information about visitors to the website. It is not possible to recognise individual persons from this information.

When you visit the Aage Vestergaard Larsen A/S' website, the following information is collected about you:

- which pages you have looked at and when – your "digital trail",
- which browser you are using,
- whether you are using a PC or a mobile,
- your domain name.

When browsing the web, you leave a "digital trail" that reveals where you have been. The trail occurs as a result of your browser sending information to a server, e.g. "I would like to see the site that belongs to the address www.avl.dk."

Most browsers tell you about their make and version number, e.g. Microsoft Internet Explorer version 7.0. The server can then return the page you requested so that it is displayed correctly with your particular browser.

At the same time as your browser asks for www.avl.dk, it sends some other information to that server, including your IP address (your "address" on the Internet). The server then knows where to send the page you requested.

Purpose of the collection

Aage Vestergaard Larsen A/S can use the information mentioned above to see, among other things, which path you use to find information on www.avl.dk.

Aage Vestergaard Larsen A/S can see whether you start from the front page and move down to the subpages, or whether you jump into the middle of the website from, for example, a search engine.

The information is only used in connection with the website's operation and for the compilation of statistics, which can be used to improve the design of Aage Vestergaard Larsen A/S' website.
